

IMN

Hailing from the 804, IMN aka Jordan makes rap music that speaks to the often forgotten people of the world, the “nobodies”. With a hungry and unique sound, IMN reminds people that they are valued and have something to offer to this world.

IMN honed his craft in middle school when he would pen his lyrics in his notebook for Health Education class and his tiny Samsung phone. An introverted soul who always flew under the radar, the Hopewell (VA) native would light up when he accompanied his father (DL) in the recording studio, where he would produce beats for his artists, including J Life and Jo Doja. Though he was in the background, IMN took notes and received advice on how to perfect his delivery and storytelling.

But, he was stricken with self-doubt and took a 7-year hiatus after struggling with his voice and the fact that he keeps his rhymes clean-cut. In 2021, he experienced heartbreak when his father lost one of his friends, and one of Virginia's finest rappers, Jo Doja, due to the COVID-19 pandemic. The dreadful pain of seeing someone who championed his passion for rapping lifeless is what eventually sparked his recent return to the game. With an undeterred attitude and appreciation for life, IMN takes a bold step forward to deliver timeless rap music.
